How We Ended Up Here

Some might ask: “If you hate it so much, why don’t you leave?”
Here’s the simple answer: because I was born here. This is my home.

I didn’t arrive on a boat. I didn’t escape a war. I didn’t flee corruption. I grew up under the southern sun, walked these streets since childhood, and learned to speak your language better than you do. My roots are here. My critique is from within.

But let’s be honest: I was never blind.

Even as a child, I could see it. The double standards. The rewritten history. The polite cruelty masked as democracy. I watched as this country mirrored its masters - England and America - in voice, values, and war. A nation pretending to be different, but always following orders.

Australia hides behind its smile. It copies the empire’s voice, joins every war, echoes every lie, and quietly obeys every command. It’s not independent—just discreetly obedient.

Yes, some of us saw racism from day one. But even then, there were still traces of decency, glimpses of values passed down from elders who had a backbone. Now those values are gone. The new generation was raised on nihilism, sarcasm, and pride. No elders. No shame. No sacredness. Just pride in self and hatred for truth.

I know this country - not from the outside, but from within.

I’ve worked here.
Walked your streets.
Ridden your public transport.
Listened to your talkback radio.
Sat in your courtrooms.
Heard your politicians spin lies.
Stood in your stadiums.
Read your history books.
Seen your justice system fail.
Heard your slurs.
Witnessed your silence.

And I say without hesitation: this is not the land of the fair go.

It is a land of polite oppression, smiling cruelty, and empty pride built on stolen ground and rewritten history. A land where the body is free but the soul is caged. Where freedom is painted on walls but erased from law. Where people laugh loudly to drown out their emptiness.

Hollow Words, Weaponized Morality

Australia parades itself as a nation of “values.” You print them on school posters, teach them in citizenship tests, preach them in parliament, and weaponize them in the media. But let’s unpack them one by one and expose the hollow slogans for what they truly are:

“A Fair Go”

They say this is the land of the “fair go” - everyone gets a chance.

- But try being Black or Aboriginal.
- Try being visibly Muslim.
- Try applying for a rental with your hijabi wife.
- Try speaking openly about Palestine.

See how quickly the “fair go” disappears.

The fairness is selective - reserved only for those who conform, obey, and smile politely. Challenge the system, and your “fair go” is gone.

“Mateship”

They claim mateship is a national virtue. But mateship died long ago.

Modern Australia is defined by chronic loneliness. People die alone in nursing homes; neighbors don’t know each other’s names; teenagers vanish behind digital screens.

“Mateship” is now merely PR for soldiers sent to die overseas for American interests. You call each other “mate,” yet betray each other over property lines and parking spots. That’s not mateship - it’s transactional politeness.

“Freedom”

Australia says it values freedom. But question the narrative, criticize Zionism, reject the alphabet cult, or mention Islamic values, and you’re censored, smeared, raided, or placed on a watchlist.

During COVID you arrested pregnant women over Facebook posts, locked down entire cities, and criminalized peaceful vigils. Your freedom comes with fine print, expiring the moment it’s inconvenient for the state.

“Equality”

Australia claims to believe in equality, yet its foundation is inequality.

Your wealth is stolen, your democracy built upon genocide, your laws crafted by invaders for invaders.

What equality?

- Look at the incarceration rates of Aboriginal youth.
- Look at your wealth gap.
- Look at who gets media protection versus who gets demonized.

You're equal - only if you bleach your name, obey the system, and pretend blindness.

"Respect for the Law"

You say you respect the law, but your laws change based on panic, headlines, or convenience.

- You respected the law when it declared Aboriginals non-human.
- You respected it when priests abused children for decades without consequence.
- You respected it when banning Muslim speakers but platforming war criminals.

You worship law, not justice.

"Democracy"

Australia claims democracy, yet your elections are media-controlled, donor-funded, and lobby-manipulated.

You've never had a referendum that threatens real power. Indigenous voices remain tokenized, protests banned, dissent censored, whistleblowers prosecuted.

This isn't democracy - it's controlled opposition with a sausage sizzle.

These aren't values - they're veneers, hollow slogans masking a declining civilization.

Australia doesn't live by its values - it just markets them. And if anyone dares apply them to Muslims, truth-tellers, Palestinians, or Indigenous sovereignty, those values vanish.

This is not the country of fairness, mateship, or freedom.
It is a nation of performance and pretense.

The Smile is a Mask

Australians smile publicly, then vanish into private loneliness.
They ask "How's it going?" but never expect an answer.
Friendly but afraid. Polite but empty.
Loud at sports, silent in truth.
Saying "mate," but trusting no one.
Partying together but dying alone.

It’s a culture of surface without depth, escape without purpose.

A Society of Addictions

Everywhere you turn, there is addiction.
Alcohol isn’t just a drink - it’s a sacred ritual.
Gambling isn’t shameful - it’s televised entertainment.
Pornography isn’t taboo - it’s normalized.
Drugs aren’t confronted - they’re accommodated.

Mental health crisis? It’s managed, never healed - just numbed with chemicals and screens. You call this progress, but it is moral decay.

You can be anything here, except someone who believes in absolute truth.
Everything is accepted - except religious conviction.
You may shout any identity loudly - but whisper your faith.

Freedom is a Costume

Australians speak of freedom like it’s sacred. But refuse their imposed values, and see how quickly that freedom disappears:

- Refuse the rainbow flag? You’re a bigot.
- Decline secular celebrations? You’re dangerous.
- Mention the word "Shariah"? You're on a watchlist.
- Support Palestine openly? You’re antisemitic.
- Wear a niqab or raise children upon Islam? You’re oppressed or radicalized.

Your so-called freedom is uniformity wearing makeup.
You’re free only as long as you remain like them.

Worship of the Superficial

I’ve witnessed Australians worship idols without calling them that: money, sport, fame, beaches, lifestyles, and food. You worship escape - from thought, from guilt, and from any sense of responsibility toward your Creator.

Your religion is entertainment; your prayer, consumption; your God, yourself.

When emptiness grows unbearable, you medicate it: antidepressants, alcohol, therapy, noise, sex, and “self-care” - everything except repentance.

The Children Are Not Alright

Australian children today are dazed, confused, and without anchors.
Raised by screens, educated by TikTok, fed lies in school.

No fathers. No God. No moral compass.
Nobody to say clearly: “This is right, and this is wrong.”

And when they inevitably break down, the system hands them gender confusion or encourages them to vanish deeper into virtual fantasies. Your children aren’t free - they’re lost.

The False Morality of the Empire

Australia bans books, arrests protesters, destroys Indigenous lands for mining, bombs villages overseas - yet still lectures the world about “human rights.”

You stand proudly beside Israel’s massacres, yet lecture Muslims about peace. You portray yourself as a peacekeeper, yet obediently follow foreign agendas into war. Australia isn’t neutral; it’s complicit. Cowardice masquerading as diplomacy, injustice hidden behind catchy slogans.

Australia’s Human Rights Superiority Complex

Your entire belief system rests on the assumption that you hold the moral authority to dictate acceptable beliefs - even to those rejecting your worldview. That’s not equality; that’s ideological imperialism.

While preaching freedom and human rights, your true record - domestically and abroad - is coercion, censorship, and force:

- Your Asia-Pacific foreign policy
- Refugee internment camps
- History with Aboriginal peoples

All testify clearly to your obsession with control and dominance.

The Collapse of Australian Principles

You say you believe in freedom of speech - until speech criticizes Zionism. Then suddenly, it’s “hate speech.”

You claim freedom of religion - until Muslims practice Islam openly. Then it’s “radicalism.”

You champion tolerance - until someone refuses your gender ideology. Then it’s “bigotry.”

Whenever society faces pressure - COVID, economic struggles, or social unrest - you instantly abandon your professed values:

- Lockdowns without accountability
- Police brutality without consequences
- Media suppression and censorship
- Arrests for peaceful vigils and social media posts

What happened to your celebrated freedoms?

Fake Democracy

You promote democracy abroad, yet domestically it's a hollow façade:

- Your government is bought by billionaires.
- Media monopolies shape public opinion.
- Corporate lobbyists dictate laws.
- Indigenous voices remain symbolic, never truly influential.

Even referendums become emotional manipulation funded by corporate interests. What democracy remains?

The Myth of National Cohesion

Australia is among the most fragmented societies globally:

- Left vs. Right
- Progressive vs. Conservative
- Religious vs. Secular
- Urban vs. Rural
- Indigenous vs. Colonial

No consensus. No shared moral compass. Just empty tribalism and manufactured patriotism patched with slogans about Anzac, Gallipoli, and superficial unity.

Meanwhile

Despite colonization, war, poverty, and disunity - even without a Khalīfah - we Muslims remain one Ummah.

From Bosnia to Sudan, Indonesia to China, Pakistan to Morocco, we inherently understand right and wrong. We do not rely on states or politicians to define morality. We do not redefine the family structure every decade, nor do we burn our scriptures, crucify our prophets, or reinvent morality to match election cycles.

We are not perfect - but our moral compass remains unchanged because our direction comes directly from Allah.

Mental Health as an Ideological Weapon

Australia increasingly pushes a relentless mental health narrative on everyone:

- “Are you sure you’re okay?”
- “Maybe you’re struggling.”
- “Perhaps you’re not really a boy.”
- “Consider medication.”
- “Let’s talk about your anxiety.”
- “Your beliefs might be a product of trauma.”

Even when people are healthy, clean, and firm in their identity and faith, they’re constantly told something must be wrong. The strategy is clear:

- Pathologize religious conviction.
- Diagnose clarity as instability.
- Label strength as hidden trauma.

Because if you convince someone they’re broken, you gain control:

- Over their beliefs.
- Over their families.
- Over their identities.

What you truly fear is someone who doesn’t need your system - someone grounded in faith, discipline, morality, masculinity, modesty, and clarity. Such people threaten your illusion, so you attempt to break them first.

Australia’s “Values” Built on Lies

You constantly speak of “Australian values” as if they’re sacred, but let’s examine your true legacy:

- Robodebt: A program that falsely accused citizens, harassed the poor, drove people to suicide - while politicians smiled on TV.
- Children Overboard: A deliberate government lie designed to demonize refugees and secure votes.
- Weapons of Mass Destruction in Iraq: Fabricated intelligence to justify joining America’s invasion, resulting in countless Muslim deaths.
- War Crimes: Your soldiers committed atrocities overseas, covered up by your leaders with zero accountability.
- Police Brutality: Indigenous men beaten and killed in custody, with nobody held accountable.
- Judicial Bias: Different sentences based on race, wealth, gender, and privilege.
- Political Corruption: Insider deals, land scams, secret donations, lobbyist control.

This is your actual legacy. And after all this, you dare tell Muslims: “Go back to your country.”

We would gladly return - but you refuse to leave our lands alone. Do you believe we enjoy living here, in a society obsessed with pigs and pornography? Do you think we dreamed of Australia? Our dream is returning home - to lands not turned into warzones by your governments and your masters in Washington and Tel Aviv.

- You bombed Iraq.
- You invaded Afghanistan.
- You destabilized Syria.
- You destroyed Libya.
- You arm Israel to slaughter Palestinian children.

You refuse to let us live in peace, then insult us for seeking safety.

A Broken Moral Compass

You openly consume pork, feed your children haram, fill their minds with filth. You place idols in your gardens, bow at yoga to false gods, worship beaches, pubs, and sports teams. But mention the Oneness of God, and you panic.

You defend football teams more passionately than prophets. You weep when Anzacs are disrespected but mock religion and shrug at genocide.

Your moral compass is reduced to Netflix and comfort. Your spiritual depth is thinner than a stadium ticket.

Half American, Half English, Fully Lost

You imitate America and mimic Britain, yet remain unsure of your own identity. Your society swings between sarcasm and silence, arrogance and insecurity. Everything’s a joke or a meme, a constant roast as a defensive shield.

Beneath that joking exterior is a profound emptiness. You inherited nothing more than a colony - built on genocide, exploitation, and mining.

The Illusion of Law and Order

You pretend to be civilized. But remove your police for a single week, and your society descends immediately into chaos - “Mad Max” made real.

At the first sign of trouble, your instinctive reaction is panic and selfishness, proven clearly during the pandemic toilet-paper hysteria. Your only impulse is hoarding and fear-driven selfishness. You fight over sanitizer yet tell the world you’re the land of mateship.

As the Joker rightly said: “These civilized people will eat each other.” He described you perfectly.

The Empowerment Fallacy

Constantly we hear:

- “Empower women.”
- “Empower migrants.”
- “Empower LGBT.”
- “Empower minorities.”
- “Empower the weak.”

Sounds noble. But to “empower” someone, you must first declare them powerless. You define people as broken, vulnerable, and incomplete - so your system can swoop in as the savior.

You create fear and then sell safety. You engineer panic, then offer the cure. You cause societal collapse, then dress your control as compassion. This isn’t empowerment - it’s humiliation, rebranded.

You’re not empowering people to stand independently; you’re conditioning them to kneel to your system:

- Reject tradition.
- Turn against family.
- Disobey religion.
- Become fragmented individuals, easy to manipulate.

Women aren’t empowered; they’re weaponized - pushed to resent men, abandon motherhood, chase empty careers, and then left isolated, medicated, and unhappy.

Migrants aren’t empowered; they’re neutered. Welcomed conditionally only if they erase their identity, wave your flag, wear your labels, and stay silent.

Children aren’t empowered; they’re reprogrammed - told they can be anything, except stable, moral, and straight.

No one is uplifted; everyone is dismantled. Your empowerment is sabotage wrapped in rainbow stickers. It’s a leash disguised as liberation. You don’t empower - you own and market people to push your ideological agenda. And those who resist? They are canceled, silenced, and red-flagged.

Your empowerment applies only to those who obediently kneel before your manufactured values.

Free Speech? That's Exactly What I'm Doing

But who am I to speak? Isn't this precisely the freedom you claim to cherish - free speech?

You say you love a good joke, a passionate rant, a bit of honest Aussie opinion. That's your famous "larrikin" spirit, right?

Until it criticizes you.
Then it becomes "radical," "hateful," "intolerant."

Free speech is tolerated only until it reveals uncomfortable truths - then you label, silence, and prosecute.

You're Not Helping - You're Hunting

Something disturbing is happening in this country. Everywhere you go now - doctor's offices, Centrelink counters, traffic fine desks - you're confronted with subtle interrogation:

- "Do you have trauma?"
- "Have you experienced abuse?"
- "Are you safe at home?"
- "Is someone controlling you?"

Even if you're there simply for a parking ticket, even if your child just has a cold. Even if you are visibly healthy. The seed of trauma is planted. They fish desperately for dysfunction, manufacturing a victim narrative where none exists.

They no longer heal - they hunt.
Families entering their offices are immediately suspect.
Fathers are treated as criminals; children subtly isolated and questioned:

- "Does your dad ever get angry?"
- "Does he tell you what to wear?"
- "Does he pray frequently?"
- "Are you sure nothing ever happened?"

They don't diagnose - they fish. They create imaginary crimes. They script victimhood under the guise of therapeutic care.

The Therapist Trap

Let me tell you a true story:

An Iranian woman, happily married, loved her husband dearly. Struggling only with stress and homesickness, she sought therapy. Immediately, the therapist probed:

- “Does your husband make you cook?”
- “Is he controlling? You can tell me.”
- “Is he Muslim?”
- “You know you have rights.”
- “You don’t have to serve a man.”
- “You could press charges.”

The woman pleaded, “I love my husband! I enjoy cooking! He’s my peace!” But that wasn’t enough. The therapist pressed on, desperate for a confession that never existed.

That’s not therapy - it’s ideological coercion.

- You aren’t permitted happiness in traditional roles.
- You can’t enjoy serving your spouse.
- You’re forbidden to love religious structure.

This woman left therapy traumatized, not helped. She sought relief but nearly ended up divorced.

They Don’t Want Healing - They Want Divorce

Make no mistake - this isn’t about protecting women. It’s about dismantling families.

They’ve redefined every tradition as trauma, labeled masculinity as criminality, turned religious households into suspect files, and wives into surveillance agents.

Women asking for help are immediately handed divorce pamphlets. No questions, no context, no genuine care. Conflict is planted; divorce scripted. Marriage is hijacked under the cover of mental wellness.

This isn’t social care - it’s social warfare:

- Against fathers.
- Against husbands.
- Against religion.
- Against family unity.

You don’t believe in healing - you believe in control.

Mental Health as Population Management

Australia’s obsession with mental health isn’t genuine concern - it’s population management.

Your system incessantly promotes anxiety and diagnoses every normal emotion as pathology. Every child's question becomes a disorder:

- Sadness becomes clinical depression.
- Boredom becomes ADHD.
- Childhood confusion becomes transgenderism.
- Questioning authority becomes paranoia.
- Masculinity becomes toxic.

The only acceptable belief in Australia today is believing that something's inherently wrong with you.

What Are You So Afraid Of?

You fear deeply:

- Chivalry
- Faith
- Truth
- Certainty
- Discipline
- Shame
- Obedience
- Family roles
- Objective morality

You label all these foundations of sanity as toxic, patriarchal, abusive, extremist, or radical. You've dismantled every stable foundation, and now, as society burns, you blame it on "unaddressed trauma."

No, it's not trauma. It's godlessness, identity collapse, and the inevitable breakdown of a culture that worships self above truth.

Victimhood as Strength?

You pretend to empower strength, but your system deliberately cultivates weakness:

- Weakness of thought
- Weakness of conviction
- Weakness in families
- Weakness in worship
- Weakness in personal responsibility

Because weak populations are easy to control. The more you push mental health awareness, the more helpless, dependent, medicated, and spiritually bankrupt society becomes. This isn't therapy; it's a calculated control mechanism.

Woke to What?

Let's be blunt: Australia has lost the plot entirely.

What began as inclusion turned into ideological madness. You've twisted compassion into chaos, rewriting truth itself to appease online activists funded by powerful lobbies:

- Boys no longer know they're boys.
- Girls are told their gender is "assigned."
- Schools ask five-year-olds for pronouns.
- Men in dresses read to children, and parents protesting this madness are labeled bigots.

You've redefined biology, gender, marriage, family, language, and basic truths to avoid offending a vocal minority. Anyone resisting this insanity is instantly branded "transphobic," "Islamist," "far-right," or "extremist."

Your system is now so fragile that truth itself is labeled hate speech.

The Feminist Cancer

Let's address the true root of family collapse:

It's not men abandoning responsibility, rebellious children, or economic struggles alone. The primary poison destroying families is modern feminism:

- Convincing women marriage is enslavement.
- Telling mothers they waste potential at home.
- Teaching daughters to pursue career titles rather than legacy, honor, and motherhood.
- Conditioning young girls into attitudes that ruin lives.

The devastating outcomes?

- Homes without fathers.
- Families without guidance.
- Generations without God.

Destroy these, and you destroy both this life and the next. You've shattered sacred bonds between husband and wife and mislabeled it independence. Womanhood itself has been redefined, leaving women isolated, unhappy, and dependent on antidepressants, dating apps, and empty validation.

Fake Statistics, Real Damage

Another political weapon you utilize cynically: domestic violence statistics.

No sane person defends abuse. But you've weaponized exaggerated, misleading statistics to advance anti-male, anti-family agendas. Any man can now be instantly removed from his home with zero evidence. Emotional manipulation overrides justice.

One accusation alone:

- Ruins reputations
- Evicts fathers
- Removes children
- Labels men criminals

No proof required, just media-driven hysteria. You abandoned evidence-based justice, preferring hashtags and knee-jerk legislation to reality. Families are destroyed to generate headlines and create the illusion you're "doing something."

You Grieve with Crosses and Beer Cans

Even your mourning rituals reflect emptiness:

- A fatal accident occurs, and your memorial is beer bottles and teddy bears.
- Crosses on highways are your best attempt at coping with loss.
- Rock ballads at funerals offer fleeting comfort, not genuine closure.

Your grief is theatrical, your religion materialistic. You have no theology, no genuine spiritual direction - no answers to life's deepest questions. You pretend confidence, yet wander aimlessly. Your highest values are "respect the flag" and "back your mates." You think you're guiding the world? You can't even guide your own souls.

The Land of Double Standards and Empty Scriptures

You claim "rule of law" and "equality," yet live by constant double standards:

- Human rights championed selectively - crushed whenever challenging your politics.
- International law enforced only when benefiting allies.
- Truth valued only as long as it remains convenient.

Even your Bible explicitly condemns double standards:

"You shall not have differing weights… differing measures." (Deuteronomy 25:13-16)

But who reads it? The Bible is mere decoration - tucked into hotel drawers next to condoms and regret. It doesn't guide your morality; it decorates your guilt.

Your Criminals Get Excuses - Ours Get Condemnation

If someone named Ahmed commits a crime, you blame Islam instantly. But when Alex does the same?

- “Mental health issues.”
- “Desperation.”
- “Society failed him.”

We clearly see your manipulative game. A non-religious Lebanese commits an offense - Islam still receives the blame. Yet your own priests and bishops abuse thousands of children - and you shield the Church. Where was the national crackdown? Where were the raids?

Fake Plots, Real Laws

Your propaganda has a clear pattern, creating fear-based narratives to pass repressive laws:

- “Children overboard” scandal - proven fake.
- “Muslims with car bombs” - political setups.
- “Weapons of mass destruction in Iraq” - outright lies.
- “Iranian nuclear threat” - manufactured panic.
- “Terror raids in Melbourne” - media theatrics.

Each narrative was leveraged to justify laws increasing state power, silencing dissent, demonizing Muslims, and empowering Zionist lobbyists to persecute our community freely.

We recognize your tactics clearly. You incite fear, invent threats, then use that panic to tighten your control.

Barbarism in a Business Suit

Australia loves to portray itself as civilized, yet the blood on your hands speaks clearly. You watched Israel massacre tens of thousands in Gaza, including countless children, yet insisted:

- “Israel has the right to defend itself.”
- “But Hamas…”
- “But hostages…”
- “But tunnels…”

Your morality vanishes the moment truth becomes inconvenient. You defend genocidal regimes, fund occupations, pass laws protecting war criminals, then hypocritically lecture the world about freedom.

The sickening truth? Most Australians accept this comfortably, conditioned to feel nothing.

How Zionism Rules Your Parliament - and Your Mind

Australia proclaims itself neutral, democratic, and fair - yet why does a settler-colonial regime thousands of kilometers away, openly practicing apartheid and ethnic cleansing, hold your political system hostage?

- No political leader dares criticize Zionism without swift repercussions.
- Media outlets self-censor, silencing criticism.
- Every Israeli massacre met with unwavering Australian support.

Your parliament doesn't just tolerate Zionism - it worships it. Politicians aren't independent - they're bought by lobbyists, controlled by donors, and terrified of honest speech.

This isn't conspiracy - it's openly practiced cowardice called "diplomacy."

Every Muslim a Suspect

You've turned our mosques into crime scenes. Every sermon is monitored; every donation flagged; every youth group watched; every Qur'an circle investigated.

- Muslim men labeled automatically as radicals.
- Muslim women treated as oppressed.
- Muslim children considered "at risk."
- Muslim families constantly "under suspicion."

But white nationalists stockpiling weapons?

- "Lone wolves."
- "Mental health issues."
- "One-off incidents."

You've openly established a two-tier society - Muslims assumed guilty, everyone else excused.

Your claims of fighting extremism are hollow; you deliberately manufacture threats, staging crises to fuel oppressive agendas.

Every Truth-Teller is a Threat

When Muslims speak truth, expose injustice, or criticize your oppressive system, they immediately become labeled:

- “Preachers of hate.”
- “Threats to social cohesion.”
- “National security risks.”
- “Extremist voices.”

There is no dialogue, no debate - just media headlines, police raids, character assassinations, censorship, and blacklisting. You clearly don’t believe in freedom of speech; you believe in freedom to comply.

Your System is Terrified of Truth

Your system can’t tolerate genuine conviction, can’t survive real resistance. It violently suppresses any voice declaring clearly:

- “We reject your legitimacy.”
- “We don’t fear your labels.”
- “We refuse your false morality.”

So you do what all tyrants do - you call resistance “radical,” faith “extreme,” and principle “terror.” You criminalize truth because truth shatters your carefully maintained illusion of control.

But this time, it isn’t working. People see through your lies. They recognize the puppetry and cowardice of suited leaders. Increasingly, Australians realize Islam is not the enemy - rather, it’s the only thing left refusing to kneel.

Corruption, Lies, and Engineered Chaos

Your police force isn’t neutral; it’s an enforcement arm of systemic racism and brutality. You claim justice, yet your justice wears blindfolds selectively:

- Heavy-handed policing targets minorities disproportionately.
- Indigenous youth fill your jails, their lives permanently scarred by systemic racism disguised as law enforcement.
- Muslims are surveilled, harassed, and criminalized under the guise of “national security.”

Police corruption isn’t an anomaly - it’s institutionalized. Racism isn’t accidental - it’s policy. Your justice system doesn’t serve truth; it serves prejudice, power, and privilege.

Media Corruption and Manufactured Division

Your media pretends neutrality while openly inciting hatred, division, and fear:

- They selectively highlight crimes committed by minorities, silencing crimes committed by those they favor.

- They stoke racial tensions, sensationalize differences, and drive communities apart for ratings and profit.
- Truth isn't reported - it's twisted, buried, or weaponized. Every narrative is carefully chosen to reinforce prejudice.

Your media's corruption goes beyond bias - it actively promotes division, feeding conflict, poisoning community relations, and inciting hate. They pick sides, sow disunity, then feign innocence when societal bonds fracture.

Staged Threats, Fake Plots, and Knee-Jerk Laws

Your government and police manufacture threats whenever they seek more power, control, or legislation targeting Muslims:

- You place explosives in abandoned cars with notes referencing synagogues - then immediately demand laws protecting Jewish communities from imaginary threats.
- These staged events are swiftly used to silence speech, increase surveillance, and introduce oppressive measures, always protecting only one group.
- When Muslims raise concerns, you silence us, accusing us of extremism, paranoia, or intolerance. Yet you never investigate your own staged events or false flags.

Every supposed threat is a calculated excuse to tighten control, strip freedoms, and legislate special privileges. Your reactionary laws are never about safety - they're about silencing opposition and empowering favored communities.

You Mocked Our Values - Now Witness Your Collapse

We Muslims told you clearly:

- Men, go out and provide for your families; protect and nurture them.
- Women, prioritize your children and homes first - work if you must, but never at the cost of your family.
- Stability requires clear roles, balanced homes, and secure children.

You mocked and laughed at us. You rejected balance and clarity, forcing both parents into endless work, abandoning children to institutional daycare:

- Daycares, where your children suffer neglect, abuse, and emotional damage.
- Daycares, where your kids are raised by strangers, absorbing confusion, violence, and immorality.
- Daycares, turning innocent children into troubled, damaged adults, worse than their abusers.

You drove families apart with soaring living costs, ridiculed traditional roles, and demanded unnatural equality. The result?

- Children today face unprecedented rates of depression, anxiety, confusion, and suicidal thoughts.
- Compare today's teenagers to those ten or twenty years ago - each generation is visibly worse, more desperate, and more lost.
- Your youth have no stable identities because you feed them constant nonsense through TV, media, news, teachers, and even their own brainwashed parents.

Your social experiment failed spectacularly. We warned you; you mocked us. Now witness your society collapse, and still you refuse to acknowledge the cause. Your children aren't victims of trauma - they're victims of your deliberate destruction of the family and relentless indoctrination.

Your Society of False Respect and Domestic Crisis

You constantly preach about love, freedom, and respect, demanding respect at every opportunity - but tell me, what respect do you actually show?

You altered laws to hand women absolute power and favoritism - like giving someone superpowers without teaching them how to control it. Predictably, they wielded it recklessly, fueled by revenge, resentment, and anger. Instead of equality, you unleashed chaos:

- You deliberately engineered a domestic crisis.
- Homes torn apart by unchecked power, revenge accusations, and false claims.
- Men criminalized and vilified without proof, family structures devastated.

You don't respect women - you weaponize them.
You don't empower families - you sabotage them.

From Daycare to Nursing Homes - A Life Unwanted

We warned you about abandoning your children to strangers in daycare, about the dangers, abuses, and lasting psychological harm. Yet you ignored every warning:

- Your children spend their formative years abandoned in unsafe, abusive daycare centers - raised without warmth, love, or genuine care.
- Daycare staff replace parents, nurturing confusion and instability in the critical early years.

Then, tragically and ironically, when you grow old, your children repeat your actions upon you:

- You're placed in nursing homes, neglected, abused, and abandoned - just as you abandoned them.
- Your own children see you as burdens rather than blessings, replicating your cruelty at life's end.

At both ends of your lives - childhood and old age - you're neither cared for nor wanted. This is your version of "respect," your "freedom," your "equality." This tragic cycle is your legacy: abandoned as children, discarded as elderly.

You mocked us when we advised nurturing, loving, structured families. Now witness clearly the broken society you've proudly created.

Your Feminist Double Standards

Your feminist ideology has reached absurdity, introducing bizarre concepts like "controlling behavior." If a man advises his family members - his wife or children - "don't do that, it's dangerous, you could get hurt," that's suddenly labeled "controlling" and oppressive.

Yet, when the police force me to wear a seatbelt "for my own safety," that's not considered controlling. The state can dictate what's safe and unsafe for me, but I'm forbidden to do the same for those I genuinely love and care about.

Do you not see your glaring double standards?

- You label protective guidance within families as oppression, but state-imposed rules as responsible governance.
- If I warn a loved one to avoid harm, I'm controlling. If authorities impose restrictions for "our own good," it's civic duty.

Your entire system - from black and white, men and women, gay and straight, right and wrong - is built on double standards and contradictions. You have no consistent morality - only reactionary policies, shallow slogans, and quick fixes that never truly heal the deep wounds of society.

Your morals aren't values - they're temporary band-aids, concealing, never curing, the damage your own policies create.

A Culture Without Culture

Yes, you've lost your soul - but more than that, you've lost your identity.

No amount of sausage sizzles at Bunnings, no Sunday barbecues, no "mate" talk or "she'll be right" slogans can cover it. These are hollow rituals - futile attempts to patch meaning onto a culture that has no depth, no tradition, no real roots.

You call yourselves Aussie Battlers, proud of your resilience and grit.
You boast about being the most "laid-back" people on earth.
But the truth?

You're some of the most uptight, irritable, and aggressive people around.

- You park a car for more than three seconds - someone's honking, shouting, threatening.
- You drive the roads like warzones - tailgating, cutting off, swearing, no patience, no grace.
- You're always in a rush, always agitated, always angry at someone.

There is no calm.
There is no empathy.
There is no inner peace in your society.

Your culture is not laid-back. It's broken.

You've traded real community for fast food, fast traffic, fast money, and fake smiles.
And now, with nothing left to believe in, you cling to catchphrases and convenience as if they mean something.

But they don't.

You Wanted the World Stage - Until Accountability Came

Australia did everything it could to be on the world stage. You begged to be seen. You tried to act important. You joined every war, every alliance, every global conversation.

But then the genocide came. And suddenly, your voice disappeared.

You said, “We’re minor players. We have no say.”

Really?
You wanted the spotlight - until morality required courage.
You wanted to be noticed - until justice demanded accountability.
You wanted to be global - until Gaza was mentioned.

In truth, Australia is not a world leader.
Australia is the dog of America.
You bark when they tell you. You stay when they command. You bite only who they point at.

You’ve lost your country.
You’ve lost your identity.
You’ve lost your values.
You’ve lost your soul.

Tell me - just once - when has Australia stood by its own moral values against America, England, or Israel?
Search history - you won’t find a single moment of real independence.

“Why Are You Still Here?”

By now, some will be asking:
“If you hate it so much, why don’t you leave? Why is the writer of this still here?”

A fair question.

The answer: He tried.
He is trying.
But the same oppressive system blocks him from leaving.

You confiscate passports. You restrict movement. You place people on secret watchlists.
You suspect people based on appearance - too much beard, too little compliance.
You raid homes without cause, arrest without trial, control without accountability.

This island nation has become an island prison.
And that is the answer to your question.

You Are Headed Exactly Where Your Movies Predict

Mark these words:
Your society is heading exactly where your own movies predict.

You flood the world with dystopian films - apocalyptic futures, collapsing cities, pandemics, total surveillance, no safety, no food, no morality. Why?

Because that's your inner state.
That's your trajectory.
That's the truth you subconsciously admit - but still won't confront.

You imagine a future of chaos because you feel it coming.

A time will come - yes, it will - when you will be the ones fleeing.
You will abandon these cities and systems you once glorified.
You will seek out the people of faith - the ones with religion, with God, with moral order - not for theological debate, but for survival.

You'll cross the oceans - not with arrogance, but with desperation.
You'll come in boats - not with tourists, but as refugees.
And it won't be wealth you're chasing - it'll be peace.

Because everything you've built is collapsing.
And the only light left... is the one you tried to extinguish.

About the Author

Nigel Smith is about as Aussie as it gets.
He grew up on Weet-Bix and weekend footy, did a bit of welding, ran a bit of fencing, knew a bloke who knew a bloke, and spent more time under the bonnet than behind a desk. He says “mate” before he says your name, reckons pineapple has no place on pizza, and still thinks the servo meat pie is a sacred national treasure.

Nigel never planned on writing a book. He just watched the country he loved start turning into something he didn’t recognise. So he put down the spanner, picked up a pen, and wrote this.

Not for fame. Not for money.
But for the next bloke who still believes right is right - even if nobody else says it anymore.

Author’s Note

This book wasn’t written for applause. It wasn’t written for likes, or polite nods.

It was written because some things still matter. Truth matters. Morality matters. Families matter. God matters.

And if we’re not allowed to say these things anymore without being labelled, cancelled, or detained - then something has gone horribly wrong.

Eight years ago, I embraced Islam. Not because of pressure. Not because of a person. But because I finally read… and it made sense. The world didn’t - but the Revelation did. That moment gave me the lens to see just how far my country had drifted. And how far we all still can come back, if we’re willing to face the truth.

You don’t have to agree with everything in this book.But if even a part of you suspects that something in this country has gone off the rails…
Then you already know why this was written.
